The Strength of Will Is the Strength of God.

-Sevak Prashant Bhaiya

Difficulties and failures can overwhelm only those who lack the willpower to face them. Challenges are not meant to break us they present opportunities for growth, while willpower transforms those opportunities into success. Anyone who wishes to strengthen their willpower must cultivate the right company, positive values, and inner discipline.

When we encounter adversity, it is an invitation to awaken the strength that already lies within us. Willpower is the force that helps us rise above our limitations and discover our true purpose. It enables us to move beyond the boundaries of the ego and align ourselves with a higher calling. Some people believe that using willpower to change circumstances interferes with God's plan. They assume that situations will improve only when God wills them to. But if we were never meant to use our willpower, why would God have blessed us with it in the first place? Such thinking only fosters passivity and negativity. We must rise above it.

Human willpower is, in essence, an expression of divine power. Every action we take whether speaking, standing, working, travelling, eating, or even resting begins with an act of will. Every meaningful plan requires the determination to bring it into reality. Without willpower, we would merely function mechanically, without purpose or direction. Even the blessings we pray for often require our own resolve and effort to become reality. Willpower helps us overcome our inner negativity and reveal our true potential. Life's ups and downs teach us never to give up. Every challenge makes us stronger, wiser, and more resilient. A positive mindset, strengthened by unwavering willpower, lights the path toward progress and success.

If we avoid difficult situations instead of confronting them, they remain as hidden emotional wounds, quietly limiting our personal growth. Both joy and sorrow are essential parts of life, and each carries valuable lessons. Happiness teaches gratitude, while hardship reveals our inner strength. Therefore, there is never a reason to lose hope or become discouraged. Staying aware, resilient, and determined requires the conscious use of willpower.

Obstacles are a part of everyone's journey. They are real, but they are rarely as impossible as they appear. With strong willpower, you can confidently say, "This challenge will be overcome." That conviction empowers you to accomplish what you once believed was beyond your reach. It releases fear and tension, replacing them with confidence and determination. In the end, the greatest obstacle is not the challenge itself, but a limited mindset. Rise above it, and you will discover that your greatest strength has always been within you.

Sanatan Culture: Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam

-Puja Shri Kailash Ji "Manav"

A timeless thought echoes in the hearts and minds of every Indian: "Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam"—The World Is One Family. This profound philosophy teaches us to regard every living being on Earth as a member of one universal family. Rooted in compassion and universal welfare, it reflects the very essence of Sanatan culture and is reaffirmed throughout our Vedic scriptures.

A mantra from the Yajurveda declares, "Yatra Vishvam Bhavaty Ekanidam," meaning, "The whole world is like a single nest." Just as birds of different kinds share one nest, people of diverse cultures, beliefs, and temperaments are united by the bond of love and mutual respect. It is the noble Vedic vision that gave rise to the concept of One World, One Family. The expression Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam is derived from three Sanskrit words: Vasu, Dha, and Kutumbakam. Vasu refers to wealth, while Dha means "that which holds or sustains." Together, Vasudha signifies the Earth the nurturing mother who holds immeasurable treasures and sustains all life. Every living being that benefits from her abundance is, in essence, her child. Like a loving mother, the Earth nourishes, protects, and provides equally for all.

The Sanskrit word Eva, meaning "indeed" or "alone," combines with Vasudha to form Vasudhaiva, conveying the profound truth that the Earth itself is our family. Today, families are breaking apart, social divisions are widening, disputes exist among states and nations, and the world stands at the edge of conflict. At the root of these challenges lies the decline of collective consciousness and the rise of individual self-interest. As selfishness, jealousy, and hatred grow stronger, the spirit of Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam is wounded, bringing suffering to humanity. When we rise above personal interests and begin to think about the collective good, we discover the path to love, cooperation, harmony, and shared prosperity. If we sincerely choose to share one another's joys and sorrows and fulfil our responsibilities with compassion, we create a society that offers lasting happiness to all.

Otherwise, life becomes burdened with unrest, deprivation, and endless problems. Even learning to nurture relationships within our own families is a significant achievement, for it lays the foundation for stronger communities and a more compassionate world.

Today, humanity is afflicted by the diseases of selfishness, greed, and envy. More than ever, the world needs a remedy that can transform anger into compassion, hatred into love, and selfishness into generosity. That remedy lies in mutual trust, goodwill, and a commitment to the common good. When our thoughts change, society changes. As society changes, so do states, nations, and ultimately, the world.

The Joint Family: A School of Values

Indian culture is not merely a collection of ancient traditions; it is a way of life that connects an individual with oneself, one's family, society, nature, and the Divine. This is why, despite thousands of years of change, invasions, and social transformation, Indian culture continues to retain its unique identity and earn global respect. At its heart lies the timeless philosophy of Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam "The World Is One Family." It teaches us to regard the entire Earth as one family, bound together by compassion, respect, and shared responsibility. In the Indian tradition, Dharma is not limited to rituals or forms of worship. It represents a life guided by truth, compassion, selfless service, self-discipline, and the faithful fulfilment of one's duties. One of the greatest strengths of Indian culture is its emphasis on the family. The tradition of the joint family has never been simply about living under one roof; it has served as a true school of values, where children naturally learn respect for elders, sacrifice, cooperation, responsibility, and unconditional love through daily life and shared experiences. Nature, too, holds a sacred place in Indian culture. Rivers are revered as mothers, the Earth as Dharti Mata (Mother Earth), trees as divine, and animals and birds as companions in the journey of life. This reverence is not merely an expression of faith but also reflects a profound understanding of environmental stewardship. At a time when the world is deeply concerned about climate change, the Indian way of life continues to offer a timeless model of living in harmony with nature. India's festivals are far more than occasions for celebration; they are powerful mediums for social and spiritual learning. Diwali symbolises the triumph of light over darkness, Holi celebrates love, unity, and harmony, Raksha Bandhan strengthens the bonds of trust and protection, and Guru Purnima expresses gratitude and reverence for knowledge and those who impart it.

Science and technology have undoubtedly transformed modern life, making it faster and more connected than ever before. Yet, progress loses its true meaning if culture is left behind. The need of the hour is to embrace modernity while remaining firmly rooted in our cultural heritage. Becoming digitally empowered is essential, but so is preserving meaningful family relationships, open communication, and respect for our elders. Indian culture teaches us that duties come before rights. It reminds us that the purpose of life is not merely to live for ourselves but to contribute positively to society and the nation. Values such as service, charity, compassion, humility, and selflessness remain just as relevant today as they were centuries ago. These timeless ideals continue to guide humanity toward a more harmonious, responsible, and meaningful way of life.

A Time for Inner Purification

Chaturmas is a sacred period dedicated to the purification of the self and the refinement of one's values. It is a time to practice mindfulness in our food, conduct, and way of life. The observance of Chaturmas holds great significance in the Jain, Vedic, and Buddhist traditions alike. In the Jain tradition, from Ashadhi Purnima to Kartik Purnima, Jain monks who spend the rest of the year travelling on foot remain at one place during these four months. Similarly, Vedic saints and spiritual teachers also observe a period of retreat during the monsoon season. The rainy season retreat includes the months of Shravan and Bhadrapada. According to the Vedic scriptures, Sage Vashistha explains that during the four months of Chaturmas, Lord Vishnu is believed to rest in the Kshira Sagara (Ocean of Milk). Therefore, this period is considered especially auspicious for dedicating oneself to yoga, meditation, scriptural study, prayer, chanting, and penance. For monks who spend eight months continuously travelling, Chaturmas serves as a period of spiritual rest and contemplation, much like the night's rest after a long day's journey.

The concept of "rest" during Chaturmas is symbolic. It signifies the restraint of outward activities and awakening of inner consciousness. Sleep represents withdrawal from external pursuits, while wakefulness symbolises active engagement. Chaturmas teaches us to turn our efforts inward to remain outwardly calm while staying spiritually awake within.

The monsoon season also brings forth countless forms of microscopic life, many of which are invisible to the naked eye. To avoid causing harm to these tiny living beings, Jain monks remain in one place throughout Chaturmas, reflecting the profound principle of ahimsa (non-violence) and reverence for all forms of life.

The true significance of Chaturmas is reflected in the sincere vows, disciplines, and spiritual resolutions undertaken by devotees. It is a time to strive for higher spiritual growth and inner transformation. Spirituality is the path that enables us to discover our true self, and Chaturmas offers a precious opportunity to walk that path with greater awareness, discipline, and devotion.

The true essence of Chaturmas is reflected in the steadfast resolutions and dedicated spiritual practices undertaken by devotees during this sacred period. It is a time to inspire ourselves to reach new heights in our spiritual journey through continuous self-study, meditation, and contemplation. It serves as a ladder that enables us to rise higher and move closer to recognising our true inner selves.

Chandni's Smile Shines Again

The life of Chandni, a cheerful twelve-year-old girl from Bahraich, Uttar Pradesh, changed forever after a tragic accident. While travelling to her maternal grandparents' home with her uncle, she slipped while boarding a train. Before she could regain her balance, the train began to move.

The devastating accident resulted in the loss of both her legs below the knees. Yet, despite the immense physical loss, Chandni never lost her spirit. The lively young girl who once filled every moment with laughter suddenly found herself confined to a life of dependence. Although her physical wounds eventually healed, the path ahead seemed closed. Crawling from one place to another and relying on others for even the simplest daily tasks became her new reality.

For the next fourteen years, Chandni remained largely confined to her home. Watching others walk freely often brought tears to her eyes. She recalls, "Whenever I saw people walking on their own feet, I wished I could do the same."

Now 26 years old, Chandni's life took a remarkable turn when her family got to know about Narayan Seva Sansthan just a month ago. Filled with hope, her parents brought her to the sansthan, where specialists assessed her condition and fitted her with Narayan Modular Artificial Limbs—advanced 3D-printed prosthetic developed using Japanese and German technology.

She also received professional gait training at the organization, learning how to walk confidently with her new prosthetic limbs. Today, Chandni stands proudly on her own feet once again. She walks with confidence, smiles with renewed joy, and performs most of her daily activities independently as she embraces a new chapter in her life.

The smile on Chandni's face is living proof that when compassion meets opportunity, even the greatest hardships cannot prevent a person from moving forward. With the right support and determination, hope can triumph over adversity, and a new beginning is always possible.

Kusum's Journey from Dreams to Reality

Kusum comes from an economically disadvantaged family where affording education was a constant challenge. With limited financial resources, her dream of attending school once seemed out of reach. Today, she is a Grade 5 student at Narayan Children's Academy, receiving free education through the support of Narayan Seva Sansthan. Kusum says, "I never imagined I would get the chance to study. Narayan Seva Sansthan made my dream come true." She attends school with enthusiasm, loves reading and writing, and is also learning computer skills to prepare for the future. Determined to succeed, she hopes to become self-reliant and support her family. With heartfelt gratitude, Kusum thanks Narayan Seva Sansthan and its generous donors for giving her the gift of education, confidence, and hope for a brighter future.

"I sincerely thank all the generous donors who have brought the light of education into the lives of children like me. Your support has given us more than an education it has given us the confidence to dream of a brighter future and the courage to turn those dreams into reality."

Parents' Eyes Filled with Tears of Joy

As They Saw Their Son with a Disability Walk Again

Tofan Singh (33), from Deori village in Madhya Pradesh's Mandasaur district, became physically disabled in childhood after complications from a fever treatment left his left leg deformed. Walking was difficult, but with the support of his parents, Nirbhay Singh and Sugan Kunwar, he continued his education and completed his graduation despite financial challenges. In 2007, after learning about Narayan Seva Sansthan through television, Tofan travelled to Udaipur with his father. He underwent successful corrective surgery and was fitted with a specially designed calliper, enabling him to walk with confidence once again. The moment their son stood on his own feet filled his parents with immense joy. Recently, Tofan returned to the institution for a replacement calliper and enrolled in its free computer training program. He is now learning computer and technical skills with dedication. His goal is to establish an e-Mitra Kiosk in his village, become financially independent, and support his parents. Tofan's journey proves that determination, family support, and timely guidance can overcome even the toughest obstacles and transform dreams into reality.

The 46th Free Mass Wedding

A Dream Come True for 21 Daughters in the Capital

When poverty, disability, and social challenges become barriers to a dignified life, helping someone realise their dreams is nothing short of a blessing. To bring hope and happiness into the lives of 21 underprivileged and differently-abled couples, Narayan Seva Sansthan organised its 46th Free Mass Wedding Ceremony in New Delhi on 6–7 June, turning years of unfulfilled dreams into reality.

Couples from Rajasthan, Jharkhand, Bihar, Gujarat, Uttar Pradesh, and other parts of the country solemnised their marriages according to Vedic traditions, taking the sacred seven vows before the holy fire. The ceremony was filled with heartfelt emotions parents shed tears of joy while the newlyweds embraced a new beginning with radiant smiles. With every sacred vow, years of struggle gave way to hope, dignity, and a brighter future.

Traditional Rituals Marked the Beginning

The two-day celebration began with traditional ceremonies, including Ganpati Sthapana, Haldi, and Mehendi. The venue came alive with the sounds of auspicious songs, while women performed Ghoomar and other folk dances, creating an atmosphere filled with warmth, celebration, and cultural pride.

Distinguished guests blessed the newly married couples, wishing them a life of happiness, harmony, and mutual respect.

Gifts for a New Beginning

On behalf of the organization, President Sevak Prashant Bhaiya, Director Mrs. Vandana Agrawal, and Trustee Mr. Devendra Chaubisa felicitated donors and guests for their generous support.

To help the couples begin their married lives with dignity and self-reliance, Narayan Seva Sansthan presented each couple with essential household items, including a bed, a wardrobe, a gas stove, a fan, a mixer-grinder, and more than 100 household utility items. Many generous donors from Delhi also contributed gifts, sharing in the joy of the newlyweds. With this ceremony, Narayan Seva Sansthan has now helped 2,582 underprivileged and differently-abled young men and women begin their married lives with dignity and hope.

Auspicious Haldi and Mehendi Ceremony

The celebrations commenced on 6 June at Golden Star Banquet, Rohini Sector-12, New Delhi. Before the wedding rituals, the first day was dedicated to traditional pre-wedding ceremonies. In the evening, Lord Ganesha was ceremonially invoked amidst Vedic chanting, followed by the auspicious Haldi and Mehendi rituals. Family members, guests, and volunteers from across the country applied turmeric and henna to the couples, praying for a happy, successful, and prosperous married life. Traditional wedding songs, vibrant folk performances, and the graceful Ghoomar dance filled the venue with joy, laughter, and heartfelt togetherness.

Ladies Sangeet

A vibrant Ladies Sangeet added a spiritual and cultural dimension to the celebration. Dance dramas depicting Radha-Krishna Raas, Rudra Avatar Hanuman, the nine forms of Goddess Durga, and Lord Shri Ram captivated the audience and filled the atmosphere with devotion. The evening continued late into the night, as traditional wedding songs and cultural performances created unforgettable memories for the couples, their families, and everyone in attendance.

"If there is a virtue greater than Kanyadaan, it is giving someone the gift of dignity, confidence, and a new beginning. When society adorns the hands of those in need with the mehndi of trust and the crown of hope, humanity itself sings songs of celebration."

A Dream That Turned Into Reality After Years

The story of Mukesh and Durga from Banswara, Rajasthan, is a true example of struggle, hope, and faith.

Mukesh lost his father at an early age, and his mother supports the family through daily wage work. On the other hand, Durga's father suffers from mental health challenges. In 2009, Durga underwent a successful surgery at Narayan Seva Sansthan, and today she works as a teacher at a private school.

Amid financial hardships and family challenges, their dream of marriage seemed distant. However, Narayan Seva Sansthan brought a new ray of happiness into their lives by making their dream of a dignified marriage come true.

After the wedding, an emotional Durga shared, "In 2009, Narayan Seva Sansthan gave me the confidence to walk, and today it has given me the companionship of a life partner.

For me, this is not just a marriage it is a new birth."

Differently-Abled & Underprivileged Mass Wedding Ceremony 2026

Respected Mothers and Esteemed Gentlemen,
Ram Ram... With heartfelt greetings and respectful salutations.

In the eternal journey of life, the organization of marriage holds a sacred place. Through marriage, human life receives direction, dignity, and purpose. In this context, marriage is not merely a social tradition; it is a lifelong commitment of responsibility, companionship, and love.

The word "Vivah" itself reflects its deeper meaning—"Vi" signifies special, and "Vah" signifies to carry or accept. Thus, marriage means willingly accepting the special responsibilities of life with love and dedication.

Marriage is that auspicious moment when two souls, through the sacred ritual of the seven vows, promise to stand together for a lifetime. In the Vedic tradition, this sacred bond is not merely a relationship but a divine commitment built on trust, devotion, sacrifice, and affection.

With this noble spirit, your own Narayan Seva Sansthan is organising the 47th Mass Wedding for Poor & Differently-abled on 19–20 September 2026 in Udaipur. In this sacred celebration, marriages of differently-abled and underprivileged individuals will be solemnised according to Vedic rituals.

The grand ceremony will include auspicious rituals such as Ganesh Puja, Haldi, Mehendi, Sangeet, traditional ceremonies, and the sacred seven vows, conducted with devotion, dignity, and joy.

This is not merely a wedding ceremony; it is an opportunity to fill the empty courtyards of daughters with happiness, to bring dignity and support into the lives of underprivileged families, and to create a new beginning filled with hope.

This celebration is a divine confluence of human service, compassion, and selfless dedication. Your small contribution can help complete the dreams of these couples and bring the light of a new beginning into their lives.

Come forward and become a part of this noble cause. Your presence will be our greatest blessing.

Disability Support Camp in Mumbai

The commitment that no person with a disability should ever feel alone, Narayan Seva Sansthan organized a Free Narayan Artificial Limb and Calliper Distribution Camp on 14 June at Nico Hall, Dadar East, Mumbai. The camp aimed to restore mobility, confidence, and independence by providing advanced rehabilitation support free of cost. A total of 127 persons with disabilities received 146 artificial limbs, including upper-limb, lower-limb, and multiple-limb prostheses, according to their individual needs. In addition, 39 beneficiaries were provided with assistive devices to enhance their mobility and daily living. The event was graced by Shri Mangal Prabhat Lodha, Hon'ble Minister for Skill Development and Entrepreneurship, Government of Maharashtra, along with Smt. Manju Lodha. Distinguished guests included Smt. Jayshreeben Anil Bathia, President of Radha Krishna Charitable Foundation (USA), camp sponsor; social worker Smt. Niti Goyal; Patron Shri Satya Bhushan Jain; Mumbai Branch President Shri Mahesh Agrawal; and several eminent social and community leaders. Organization Trustee-Director Shri Devendra Chaubisa welcomed the guests and highlighted that the camp focused on free screening, assessment, and customized rehabilitation services. Beneficiaries received advanced 3D-printed prosthetic limbs developed using Japanese and German technology, ensuring greater comfort, precision, and improved mobility. Appreciating the initiative, Chief Guest Shri Mangal Prabhat Lodha said that empowering persons with disabilities to become self-reliant is a truly inspiring mission and such efforts should reach more people across society. The camp was coordinated by Mahim Jain, while the vote of thanks was delivered by Shri Ravish Kavdia.

Rukhmin Found a Future Filled with Hope

Rukhmin, a resident of Faridpur in Kaushambi district, Uttar Pradesh, was unable to walk since childhood due to a congenital deformity in both her feet. Her parents are also persons with disabilities and worked as daily wage labourers to support the family. Due to financial constraints, Rukhmin could not receive the medical treatment she needed. With the support of her four elder sisters, she continued her education and is currently studying in Class 12. Her brother-in-law, Gyan Babu, learned about the free medical and rehabilitation services of Narayan Seva Sansthan through a television program. Hoping for a better future, he brought Rukhmin to the organisation on 15 September 2025. After a detailed medical evaluation, Rukhmin underwent successful surgery on 30 September to correct the deformity in her feet. Nine months later, specially designed callipers were prepared for her at the organisation. Today, she can walk comfortably and perform her daily activities independently. During rehabilitation, Rukhmin enrolled in a tailoring training programme. She quickly developed strong tailoring skills and now dreams of becoming self-reliant by starting a tailoring business from home. She also hopes to support and care for her elderly parents. Service, compassion and positive thinking are the foundations of progress for both individuals and society.

Strength Inspires Success: Bhaiya Ji

Bhaiya Ji: Moving
Towards Success
with Self-Confidence

Service to Humanity is Service to God

The monthly “Apno Se Apni Baat” session at Narayan Seva Sansthan is becoming an inspiring platform for persons with disabilities and their families who visit the organisation for artificial limbs, callipers, free surgeries, and employment-oriented training. In June, the programme was held in two sessions and broadcast on Sanskar and Aastha channels. Addressing the gathering, President Sevak Prashant Bhaiya highlighted the importance of effective time management, self-confidence, and inner strength in achieving success and self-reliance. He said that devotion, service, sensitivity, and positive thinking are essential for the progress of individuals and society. Through inspiring stories of Dhruva, Vidura, Draupadi, Shabari, Jatayu, and Sudama, he explained how challenges can make people stronger and open new doors of opportunity. Beneficiaries including Tofan Singh from Madhya Pradesh, Sadanand and Junaid from Uttar Pradesh, Bhanu Pratap from Rajasthan, and Devendra Nath from Chhattisgarh shared their inspiring journeys of transformation through computer training, artificial limbs, successful surgeries, and other services. The second session observed Nirjala Ekadashi with devotion and spirituality. Fruits and meals were arranged for persons with disabilities and their families. Fruits, clothes, umbrellas, water pots, and other essential items were also distributed among those in need.

Through the Guru's Grace Comes the Realization of Truth and Bliss

Vyas, the great sage and author of the Mahabharata & many revered scriptures, is also worshipped as the day marks his birth anniversary. A Guru is not merely a name or physical form; the Guru represents the divine principle that awakens us to truth and eternal reality. Just as gold remains gold whether shaped into ornaments, and clay remains clay whether formed into pots or toys, all beings, despite differences in name and form, are manifestations of the same divine consciousness. The Guru helps us realise this eternal unity.

There can be no greater true friend than a Sadguru. Lord Rama accepted Rishi Vashishtha as his Guru, Lord Krishna received guidance from Rishi Sandipani, Adi Shankaracharya followed Govindananda, Chaitanya Mahaprabhu received guidance from Ishwar Puri, and Swami Vivekananda found his spiritual master in Sri Ramakrishna Paramahansa. A true Guru awakens wisdom, divine energy, and noble qualities within the disciple.

The spiritual journey can be compared to a shell patiently waiting in the ocean for a precious drop of rain. When the drop enters, the shell closes and descends into the depths, where the drop gradually transforms into a pearl. Similarly, under the guidance of a Sadguru, sincere spiritual practice transforms the seeker and reveals the true purpose of life.

A Sadguru helps us understand the profound Vedic truth, "Tat Tvam Asi" (That Thou Art) the eternal consciousness within us is the same divine essence present in all beings. The Guru removes the darkness of ignorance, clears doubts, frees us from attachment to the temporary, and guides us towards ultimate reality.

At Narayan Seva Sansthan, Guru Purnima will be celebrated on 29 July with devotion, faith, and enthusiasm. The organisation, which believes that service to humanity is service to the Divine, is dedicated to providing free education, healthcare, rehabilitation, and skill development to persons with disabilities and underprivileged communities.

On this sacred occasion, the organisation will ceremonially honour and pay tribute to its guiding force, Revered Gurudev Padma Shri Awardee Shri Kailash Ji "Manav". You are cordially invited to join this sacred celebration and experience the divine spirit of Guru Purnima.

The Guru, who imparts knowledge and guides individuals towards the righteous path, holds the highest place of reverence.

Guru Purnima is a sacred festival dedicated to expressing devotion, gratitude, and respect towards the Guru. On this day, Maharishi Ved

Improved Digestion and Relief from Body Stiffness

Mrs. Parvarish Narendra Sarvaiya from Mumbai is extremely happy with the remarkable improvement in her health after receiving natural therapy, following a balanced diet, and adopting a healthier lifestyle at Narayan Mahavir Natural Therapy Hospital of Narayan Seva Sansthan. The treatment not only improved her physical well-being but also renewed her energy, confidence, and positive outlook towards life. Recently, Parvarish Ji visited the organisation's Natural Therapy Centre at Liyon Ka Guda along with her mother. It was her first experience with naturopathy. When she arrived at the centre, her blood sugar level was around 550. She was also suffering from persistent pain in her hands and legs, knee discomfort, and stiffness throughout her body. During the 10-day natural therapy programme, she received various treatments, including hydrotherapy, therapeutic massage, enema therapy, mud therapy, and other natural healing therapies. A special treatment using Aak (Calotropis) leaves also provided her significant relief. Along with these therapies, she was given a nutritious and balanced diet to provide essential nourishment and support the recovery process. The combination of natural therapies and a balanced diet brought remarkable changes to her health. Her digestion improved significantly, while the stiffness and pain in her hands, legs, and knees were greatly reduced. She also experienced better control over her blood sugar levels. Sharing her experience, Parvarish Ji expressed heartfelt gratitude to the doctors, therapists, and staff for their care, affection, and dedication. She appreciated the organisation for effectively utilising donations in providing surgeries, education, healthcare, and rehabilitation services to children and persons with disabilities.

District Collector Visits Narayan Seva

Newly appointed Udaipur District Collector Shri Gaurav Agrawal recently visited the Seva Mahatirth campus of Narayan Seva Sansthan at Liyon Ka Guda. During his visit, he inaugurated the 3D-printed Narayan Modular Artificial Limb Fitting Camp, developed using advanced Japanese and German technology. He also interacted with persons with disabilities and their families who had come from different states for artificial limbs, calipers, and free surgical services. The District Collector visited the organisation's free skill training centres, where persons with disabilities receive training in tailoring, computer education, mobile repairing, handicrafts, and other vocational skills. He interacted with trainees and trainers to learn about the quality and progress of these programmes. Appreciating the organisation's services, Shri Gaurav Agrawal said that he had rarely witnessed such dedicated service for underprivileged and needy people. He expressed admiration for the large-scale provision of free medical care, education, skill training, and rehabilitation services. The organisation's founder, Revered Gurudev Shri Kailash Ji 'Manav', President Sevak Prashant Bhaiya, and Director Mrs. Vandana Agrawal welcomed the District Collector and shared the organisation's 40-year journey of service. Sevak Prashant Bhaiya highlighted that the organisation has provided free surgeries to more than 4.52 lakh persons with disabilities, distributed artificial limbs to over 40,000 accident-affected individuals, and organised mass weddings for more than 2,500 differently-abled and underprivileged couples. Through Narayan Children Academy, 783 children from economically disadvantaged families are receiving free English - medium education. The District Collector also expressed his intention to send probationary administrative officers to visit the organisation and experience its values of service and compassion, inspiring them to approach their responsibilities with greater sensitivity and humanity.

Talent &
Engagement

Partnering with Narayan Seva Sansthan has been one of the most meaningful expressions of Credit Saison India's CSR commitment to Empowering Futures and Enriching Lives. Our visit to their Udaipur facility in April 2026 gave us a first-hand view of the extraordinary impact they create from life-changing corrective surgeries to specialised artificial limbs that restore dignity and independence to persons with disabilities. Through our CSR support in FY 25-26, we contributed towards limbs and corrective surgeries for 100 patients each, helping them regain mobility and lead independent lives.

It is truly inspiring to see an organisation that combines operational excellence with genuine empathy & we are honoured to support this mission together.
