Success Through Dedication

A person's failure does not necessarily mean that success is beyond their reach. Often, it shows that the effort, preparation, or approach needed to achieve the desired result was incomplete. Every person seeks recognition, respect, achievement, and purpose in life, but true success is not limited to a high position, wealth, or material comforts. Being useful to society and making a positive difference are equally important measures of success.Many people work hard day and night, yet only a few achieve the success they seek. It is easy to call others failures, but the real difference between successful and unsuccessful people often lies in having a clear goal and a thoughtful strategy. Successful people understand their circumstances, identify practical solutions, plan their actions carefully, and assess their abilities with positivity and self-awareness.Before beginning any task, it is important to consider its possible outcomes and then commit oneself wholeheartedly to completing it. Inadequate preparation, lack of direction, or weak determination can keep success at a distance.However, repeated failure does not mean that a person can never succeed. Sportspersons are a good example.

They may lose a match, but they learn from their mistakes, prepare again, and return with renewed determination to win the next time.History also offers the popular story of Muhammad Ghori and Prithviraj Chauhan. Ghori is said to have faced repeated defeats in his attempts to conquer Prithviraj Chauhan's territories. After one defeat, he reportedly took refuge in a cave, where he saw an ant repeatedly trying to reach its destination. The ant fell several times but continued trying until it succeeded.Inspired by the ant, Ghori regained confidence, reorganised his forces, and returned with greater determination. The story teaches us that failure is not the end. If we learn from our mistakes, prepare properly, plan wisely, and remain determined, success may take time, but it need not remain beyond our reach.

Revered Shri Kailash Ji 'Manav'

Days Do Not Pass Without Leaving a Trace

Raindrops gather drop by drop, and the waters of small rivers and streams eventually fill the vast ocean. Conversely, when water steadily leaks away drop by drop, even a large reservoir can become completely empty. In much the same way, every moment of human life holds immense importance. Not a single moment that has passed can ever return. As these moments slip away, days, weeks, months, and years pass with them. Goswami Tulsidas Ji wrote in the Ram-charitmanas, "Divas jaat nahi lagat bara"days pass before we even realise it. These words remind us of the swift passage of time. As time moves forward, the final moment of life also draws closer.

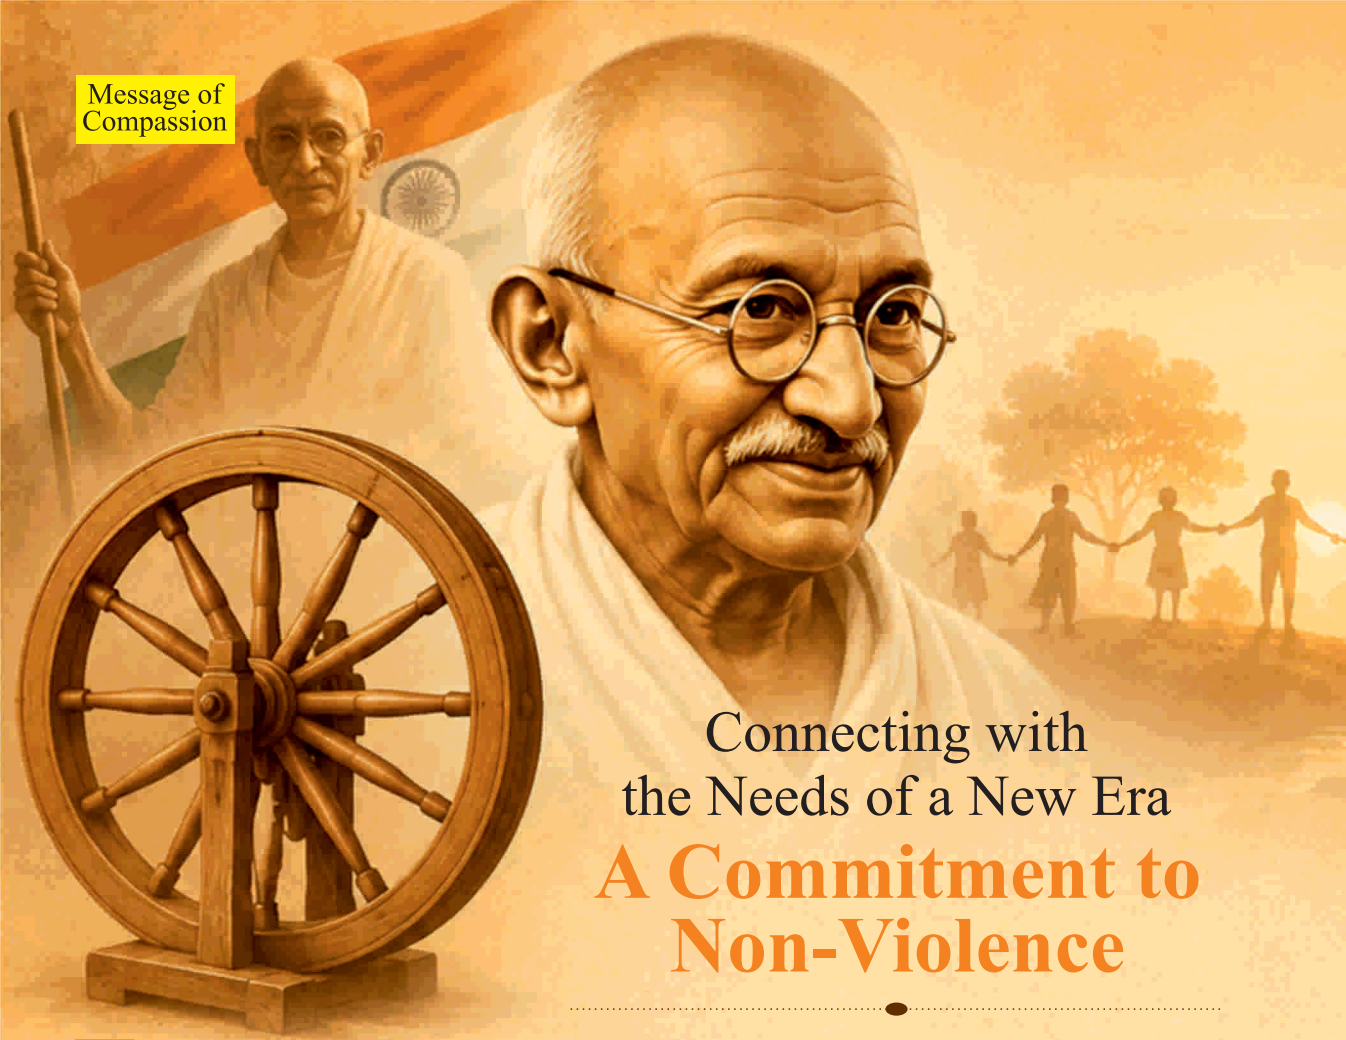

Those who fail to understand the value of time & waste it eventually find themselves defeated by time itself. Time never stops, nor does it slow down. Whether weak or powerful, king or commoner, master or servant, no one can challenge the force of time. Time is a precious gift from God, and what is lost can never be recovered. It would not be an exaggeration to regard time as a manifestation of the Divine. A person who respects time, recognises its value and makes good use of it naturally becomes fortunate. Just as selfless devotion to God enriches& transforms life, respecting time also helps a person make life more meaningful.

In the Shrimad Bhagavad Gita, Lord Krishna inspires human beings to remain steadfast on the path of duty, because inaction can lead only to failure. Human life is fleeting, and our ability to work gradually declines with age. Therefore, through wisdom and discernment, one must understand that the time available to fulfil one's duties is limited. This precious human life should not be wasted. It should instead be dedicated to the welfare of the family, society, nation and all living beings.

Time Is Precious Wealth, and Time Is Life.

Those who understand the value of time have little reason for regret. A person who respects time earns respect in return.

Connecting with the Needs of a New Era

A Commitment to Non-Violence

2 October is not merely a day to commemorate the birth anniversary of Mahatma Gandhi; it is an opportunity to embrace the values through which he made truth, non-violence, compassion, and humanity a source of strength for society. As technology advances, intolerance, bitterness, and emotional distances are also growing. In such times, Gandhi's thoughts have become more relevant than ever.This year, instead of limiting Gandhi Jayanti and the International Day of Non-Violence to garlanding portraits, speeches, and cleanliness drives, we need to understand and practise non-violence in modern life. Today, non-violence does not simply mean avoiding physical violence. It also means not hurting others through words, not spreading rumours or hatred on social media, not mocking vulnerable people, and treating nature with sensitivity.Gandhi envisioned an India where even the person standing at the last rung of society could live with dignity. Therefore, we should pledge to respect persons with disabilities, ensure equal opportunities, and support their journey towards self-reliance. Recognising their abilities and potential, rather than viewing them with pity, is a true expression of non-violence.Making public spaces accessible, expanding opportunities in education and employment, and ensuring the inclusion of persons with disabilities in mainstream society can be a modern extension of Gandhian thought.This Gandhi Jayanti, each of us can make a small commitment: not to insult or discriminate against anyone, not to spread hatred through digital platforms, and not to leave a person in need without support. Organisations can also turn blood donation, disability support, cleanliness drives, tree plantation, and assistance to those in need into continuous initiatives.Gandhi taught that change begins with oneself. If we bring compassion into our behaviour, restraint into our conversations, and service into our actions, it will be the truest tribute to his ideals.Let the new meaning of non-violence be this: no one should be hurt, no one's dignity should be taken away, and no one should be denied an opportunity because of their limitations.

Kanya Pujan
A Blessing of Good Fortune

Navratri is a festival that celebrates the blossoming of beauty, the joy of life and the worship of Adi Shakti Maa Durga. During these nine sacred days, young girls are revered as manifestations of the Divine Feminine, making Kanya Pujan an important part of the festival.
At Narayan Seva Sansthan, as in previous years, Kanya Pujan will be performed on Durga Ashtami, the ninth day of the Shukla Paksha of Ashwin month. On this occasion, 501 girls with disabilities will be worshipped as manifestations of the Divine Mother. Many of these girls have received successful, free corrective surgeries at the Sansthan, made possible through the blessings of the Divine Mother and the generous support of our donors.

There are many stories associated with the celebration of Navratri. According to the Durga Saptashati, demons such as Shumbha, Nishumbha, Raktabija, and Mahishasura once created great turmoil on Earth. To put an end to their tyranny, the gods sought divine intervention. Maa Durga manifested in her powerful form and, after a fierce battle, destroyed these forces of evil, freeing the three worlds from fear.

On the first day of Navratri, Ghatasthapana is performed before the Goddess. Kumkum, akshat, an unbroken lamp, flowers, incense and lamps are offered as part of the worship. Barley seeds are sown in two earthen vessels filled with fertile soil. From this day onward, devotees perform rituals and prayers before the sacred kalash and the Divine Mother for nine days, following the prescribed traditions. Many devotees also observe a fast during this period.

On the final day, Durga Ashtami, young girls are worshipped and offered a meal and gifts. It is believed that their blessings bring good fortune and prosperity. The sacred barley shoots are then immersed in a holy river, lake or well, marking the completion of the ritual.

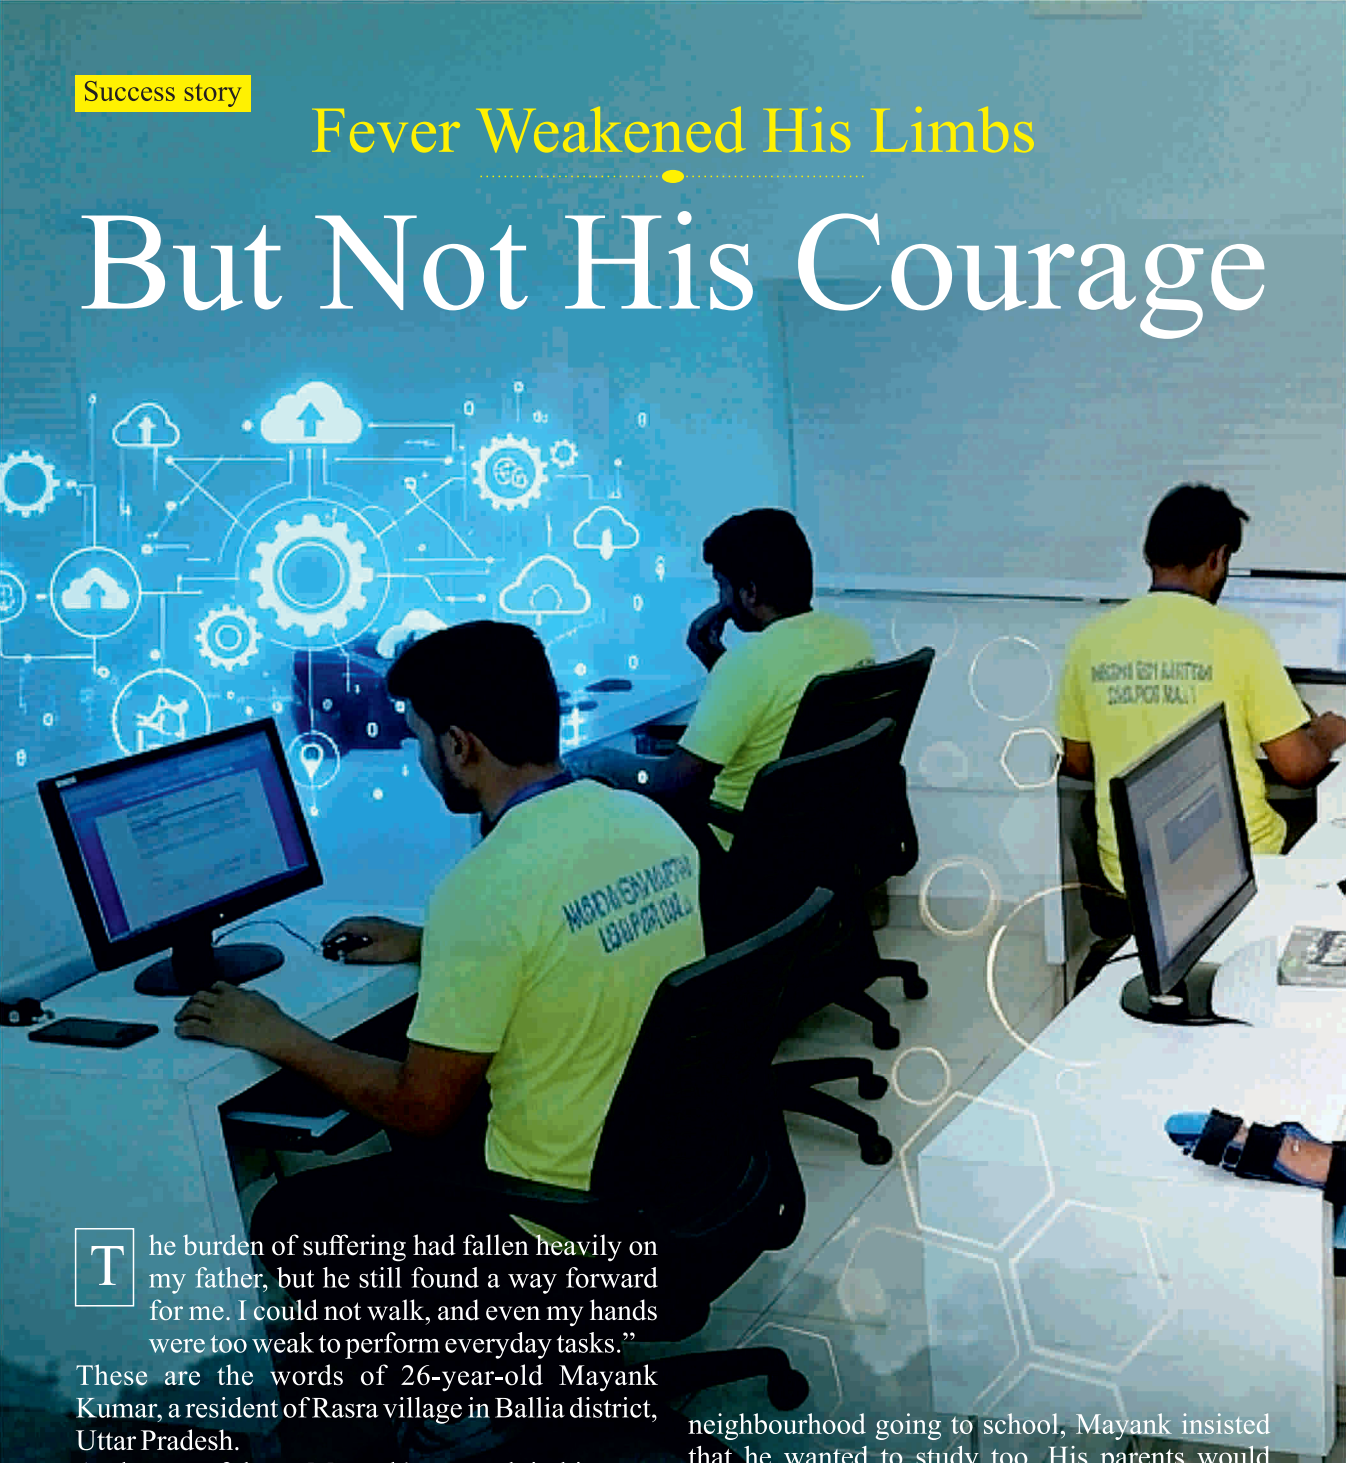

In These Young Girls,

The nine forms of Maa Durga are revered: Shailputri, Brahmacharini, Chandraghanta, Kushmanda, Skandamata, Katyayani, Kaalratri, Mahagauri and Siddhidatri.

Success story

Fever Weakened His Limbs

But Not His Courage

"The burden of suffering had fallen heavily on my father, but he still found a way forward for me. I could not walk, and even my hands were too weak to perform everyday tasks."

These are the words of 26-year-old Mayank Kumar, a resident of Rasra village in Ballia district, Uttar Pradesh.

At the age of three, Mayank's strength in his arms and legs was affected following a severe bout of fever. His father took him to the hospital, where doctors explained that the fever had seriously affected his body. Despite treatment, there was little improvement. Although their hopes were often tested, his parents never gave up. They continued to do everything they could to secure a better future for their son.

At the age of five, after seeing children from the neighbourhood going to school, Mayank insisted that he wanted to study too. His parents would sometimes carry him and at other times support him as they took him to school. Because of his disability, he faced neglect and ridicule. During prayer assemblies, he was asked to sit at the end of the line because he could not stand. Despite these difficulties, Mayank refused to give up and continued his education.

In 2017, Mayank's father learned about Narayan Seva Sansthan's free surgeries for children affected by polio. He brought Mayank to Udaipur, where he underwent three surgeries on his arms and legs. Following the surgeries, Mayank was able to stand and walk without support and perform everyday tasks with his hands.

Success story

Yuvraj
Resident – Delhi

Yuvraj was born with a physical deformity. When he was around three years old, his parents began noticing that his legs were turning abnormally. At first, the condition went unnoticed, but as he continued to have difficulty walking, his parents took him to a hospital.

After examining him, the doctor told his mother, "He will need surgery to be able to walk properly." The treatment was difficult and expensive, and the family was struggling financially. An immediate operation was not possible.

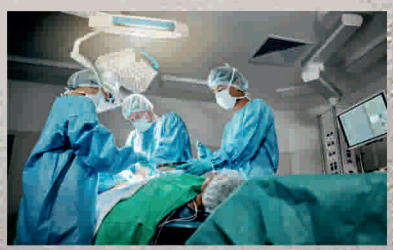

His father worked in Delhi from morning until evening to earn a living, while his mother managed the household and worked hard to support the family. Despite their efforts, they could not afford the treatment their son needed. As time passed, Yuvraj's difficulties increased.

He was eventually enrolled in school, but his condition made everyday classroom activities difficult. After completing Class 12, someone advised the family to take him to a major hospital, as he still had a long life ahead of him.

By then, Yuvraj was around 15–16 years old. His parents took him for treatment, but the doctors considered his case complicated, partly because of his age and growth. Although treatment was undertaken, it did not provide much relief.

Their son continued to live with a disability, while the family struggled under financial pressure and mounting debt. Somehow, they managed to repay their loans, but Yuvraj's treatment remained incomplete.

"Will I ever be able to walk properly?" His mother had no answer. Her eyes filled with tears. In June 2026, Yuvraj's father, Bharat Bhushan, learned through Instagram that Narayan Seva Sansthan in Udaipur provides free treatment, assistive devices, and artificial limbs to persons with disabilities. The family travelled to Udaipur for help. As Yuvraj was older by then, doctors did not recommend surgery. Instead, a special camp was arranged for him, where he was fitted with a prosthetic leg. With the new artificial limb, Yuvraj was able to stand and walk. The Sansthan's team told him, "We have helped you stand; now it is your turn to walk towards self-reliance." Yuvraj chose the Mobile Repairing course from the Sansthan's free, employment-oriented vocational training programmes. As the only son of his parents and the only brother of his younger sister, he wants to become financially independent, support his family from home, and help his parents repay their debts.

He says, "At the Sansthan, I have been given the opportunity to welcome a new morning in my life."

The Wonderful Saga of Lord Shiva's Glory

Prashant Bhaiya said:
"Contemplation of Lord Shiva for the welfare of the world is itself a sacred duty. On this occasion, the Sansthan's Patron and Chairman, Shri Kailash 'Manav' Ji, further honoured this noble cause by offering his contribution for the welfare of students with disabilities & earning the blessings of this selfless act of giving."

An Unbroken Flow of Faith, Compassion and Inner Strength

That Sawan season was so divine that it seemed as though Mother Ganga herself had released her locks, with Prashant Agrawal Bhaiya Ji becoming the medium through which her sacred flow descended upon the earth. The atmosphere at Narayan Seva Sansthan resonated with devotion. Chants of Lord Shiva echoed everywhere, while cries of victory and tears of joy filled the air. Amid this spiritual fervour, Sansthan President Prashant Bhaiya Ji delivered an extraordinary discourse on Lord Shiva's glory, immersing differently-abled individuals and their families from across the country in faith, compassion, and inner strength.The Katha unfolded through timeless episodes that reflected the profound philosophy of life: Lord Shiva's manifestation, Maa Sati's sacrifice in the sacred fire, Shiva holding the mighty Ganga in his matted locks, and the emergence of Haridwar. It explored how anger, too, becomes part of Shiva's cosmic dance when righteousness must be protected. Maa Parvati's penance, her divine union with Lord Shiva, and the triumph of righteousness over adversity further enriched the discourse. The magnificent episode of Samudra Manthan revealed the highest expression of compassion, as Lord Shiva consumed poison to protect the universe.As the Katha reached its climax, devotion swept through the gathering. Forgetting their worldly worries, differently-abled devotees joined in the powerful chants of "Har Har Mahadev," creating an atmosphere filled with spiritual energy and emotion.On this occasion, Prashant Bhaiya Ji shared a profound message: true devotion to Lord Shiva lies not merely in performing Aarti, but in relieving the suffering of those in pain. This, he explained, is the true essence of Shivatva.

His discourse transformed ritualistic worship into a heartfelt journey of selfless service, connecting faith with humanity, compassion, and the spirit of serving others.

Festival

Glimpses of Festive Spirit

Shri Krishna Janmashtami

The Shri Krishna Janmashtami festival was celebrated in a devotional atmosphere on 4 September at the World of Humanity in Mali Colony, Narayan Seva Sansthan. The tableaux depicting Radha-Krishna, childhood pastimes of Lord Krishna, devotional songs, and the traditional Matki Phod filled the entire campus with the vibrant spirit of Gokul and Vrindavan. The celebration was attended by the Sansthan's Founder, Revered Shri Kailash Ji 'Manav', Co-Founder Smt. Kamla Devi Ji, President 'Sevak' Prashant Bhaiya, Director Smt. Vandana Ji Agrawal, along with trustees, Sadhaks and Sadhikas, and local residents. The event featured beautiful tableaux depicting Shrinathji, the Narasimha Avatar, Radha-Krishna, and the subjugation of Kaliya

Naag, adding to the devotional splendour of the celebration. The tableaux were a major attraction of the celebration. The scene of Kaliya Naag Mardan was brought to life through special electronic effects. Children from Narayan Children Academy dressed as Radha and Krishna and gave captivating performances. Devotees lovingly swung Laddu Gopal on the cradle, while the atmosphere came alive with devotional bhajans. The children formed a human pyramid to break the traditional Matki, after which makhan prasad was distributed among the devotees. The programme was conducted by Mahim Jain.

World of Humanity,
A Centre of Hope for Humanity

Where a person has lived with the pain of a physical limitation since birth, or where an accident has suddenly taken away the ability to move forward in life, treatment must heal not only the body but also restore hope.

Giving shape to this humanitarian vision, Narayan Seva Sansthan's World of Humanity centre is opening a new chapter of service. The centre will become a doorway of hope for people with disabilities, where disability is not seen as a destiny but as an invitation to begin anew.

More than 100 persons living with congenital disabilities will receive free corrective surgeries

Nature: An Effective Healer

At times, in the rush of everyday life, people forget to listen to the signals of their bodies. Amid responsibilities and changing lifestyles, health problems can gradually become a part of daily life. The story of Smt. Varshaben Atulbhai Shah, a resident of Ahmedabad, Gujarat, is much the same. Associated with Narayan Seva Sansthan for the past 20 years, Smt. Varsha Ji had been struggling with health issues such as high blood pressure, diabetes, back pain, and high cholesterol for a long time. Persistent fatigue and back pain had begun to affect her daily routine.

It was during this time that she learned about the Bhagwan Mahavir Naturopathy Centre, operated by Narayan Seva Sansthan. She visited the centre and underwent naturopathy treatment for 10 days. Under the guidance of experts, she adopted a balanced diet, a regular routine and natural therapies as part of her lifestyle.

With regular naturopathy treatment and a balanced lifestyle, she experienced relief from her health problems. She says she found complete relief from diabetes, back pain and high cholesterol. Smt. Shah shares that she now feels healthier, more energetic, and better than before.

For her, naturopathy was not merely a means of improving her health but an experience of learning to live life with a renewed sense of balance. Health is not simply the absence of illness; it is also about feeling energetic in the body, joyful in the mind, and enthusiastic about life. When we listen to our bodies and maintain harmony with nature, we open the way to a healthier and better life.

> “Maintain balance with nature, and health problems will naturally begin to fade away.”
